Subject: Application for Project Manager – Men and Masculinity.

Dear Hiring Committee,

I am writing to express my keen interest in the Project Manager position, as advertised. With over a decade of professional experience in public health and development—specifically in project management, policy advocacy, and gender-transformative programming—I am confident in my ability to lead this initiative focused on engaging men and boys and addressing patriarchal norms in Madhesh Province.

I bring a rich background in working collaboratively with provincial governments, international development partners, and local organizations across Nepal. My recent roles involved managing multi-sectoral programs, including those funded by global donors, where I provided technical oversight, ensured timely and quality implementation, and supported teams in documentation and reporting. I have previously led behavior change interventions that addressed harmful social norms and promoted gender equity—experience that aligns strongly with the goals of your project.

Specifically, I can contribute to:

- Providing strategic and technical guidance on men's engagement and masculinity frameworks.
- Supporting the integration of GEDSI principles throughout project implementation.
- Coordinating effectively with stakeholders at provincial and federal levels to ensure alignment with policy priorities.
- Leading monitoring, documentation, and knowledge-sharing processes to support adaptive learning and replication.

I admire HDV's commitment to social transformation through locally-driven and inclusive approaches, and I am excited about the opportunity to support this critical initiative. My expected salary is NPR 150,000 and is negotiable based on the scope of responsibilities and benefits. Please find my resume attached for your consideration. I look forward to the opportunity to discuss how I can contribute to your impactful work. Thank you for considering my application.

Warm regards,
Rakesh Yadav
